

SCHOOL DAYS NEARLY HERE

The Fall Semester Will Open
September 20.

Many Changes With a View to Greater Efficiency.

NEW BOOKS AT HIGH SCHOOL

Several Changes Have Taken
Place in Teaching Staff.

A Number of New Faces Will Be Seen.

"Aw! Please don't go so fast—I don't wanna hurry!"

This is how many a Topeka school child feels about Father Time's mad race to the opening day of school—September 20. The first day of school is "just round the corner" and the intervening days are numbered.

There will be many changes with a view to greater efficiency. The aggregate attendance should show a normal increase, but no gain is expected at the high school because of the intermediate schools at the Sumner and Quincy buildings which will care for 200 of the pupils who would ordinarily enroll at the high school. The total enrollment at the high school in the last school year was by a wide margin the greatest in the history of the school—1,589.

Intermediate Schools.

The intermediate schools at the Sumner and Quincy buildings will include the seventh, eighth and "ninth" (corresponding to freshman year in high school) grades. E. F. Stanley will manage the affairs of the intermediate schools at the Sumner building and C. M. Morrow at the Quincy building. Mr. Morrow will serve as principal of both the Quincy and Grant buildings. O. P. McClintock will be principal of both the Sumner and Harrison schools. The doubling up will mean a saving in salaries.

Repairs have been made at the respective school buildings and the Topeka educational plant will be in excellent physical condition when the first semester starts.

Many Changes at High School.

There will be more changes at the high school than anywhere else. In the first place practically every text book will be different. As there is an exchange rate for old books prospective students should be looking up their stock.

The business course will be strengthened. A class in salesmanship will be offered the first semester and one in advertising the second semester under J. L. Crawford, who will come here from the Omaha high school of commerce. Twenty-five students asked in advance to take this work and the subjects are expected to prove extremely popular.

Miss Margaret Howland will have charge of the classes in expression, and classes in English formerly taught by Miss Carmie Wolfe. English 7 is known as the "Debate course." Sheriff Smith will have the classes in music. Mr. Smith made a success of his work as director of the High School Glee club last year. He doubtless will organize a strong glee club next semester. The high school orchestra will be continued.

Miss Elizabeth Campbell, of Topeka, will devote part time to the teaching of German in the high school and part time to the same subject in the intermediate schools. Miss Ruth Schnacke, of Topeka, will be instructor in English. Miss Martha George, of Emporia, will teach history and mathematics.

An innovation that should prove popular will be classes in boys gymnasium work under W. P. McLean, supervisor of physical education in the city schools. These classes will meet daily the first and last hours.

Miss Grace M. Elmore will conduct classes in penmanship during the periods between 5:30 and 2:30 o'clock.

Miss May Baker will have charge of the high school cafeteria. Miss Caroline Martin will return to the domestic science department.

H. S. Instructors Study.

Miss Carmie Wolfe will study for a year at Columbia university. Miss Lydia M. Bolmar of the domestic science department has also been granted leave of absence for a year. She will study in New York.

Many of the high school instructors have been increasing their efficiency through this summer. A. J. Stout, principal, took special work at Columbia university. Herman H. Beneke, instructor in history and civics, studied at Chicago. Miss May Olcott, as did Miss Stella May Olcott, instructor in mathematics. Miss Frances Lindsay, instructor in applied art and drawing, has been taking special work at Columbia university. Mrs. Lucretia Embleton, instructor in Latin, has been studying at the University of California.

Miss Elmore has completed a course in physical education at Harvard. A. H. Water of the manual training department has been taking special work at Chicago university. Miss Ethel M. Aldrich, instructor in history, has been studying in the east. Miss Marie U. Fowler is back from Chicago university.

Those Who Have Resigned.

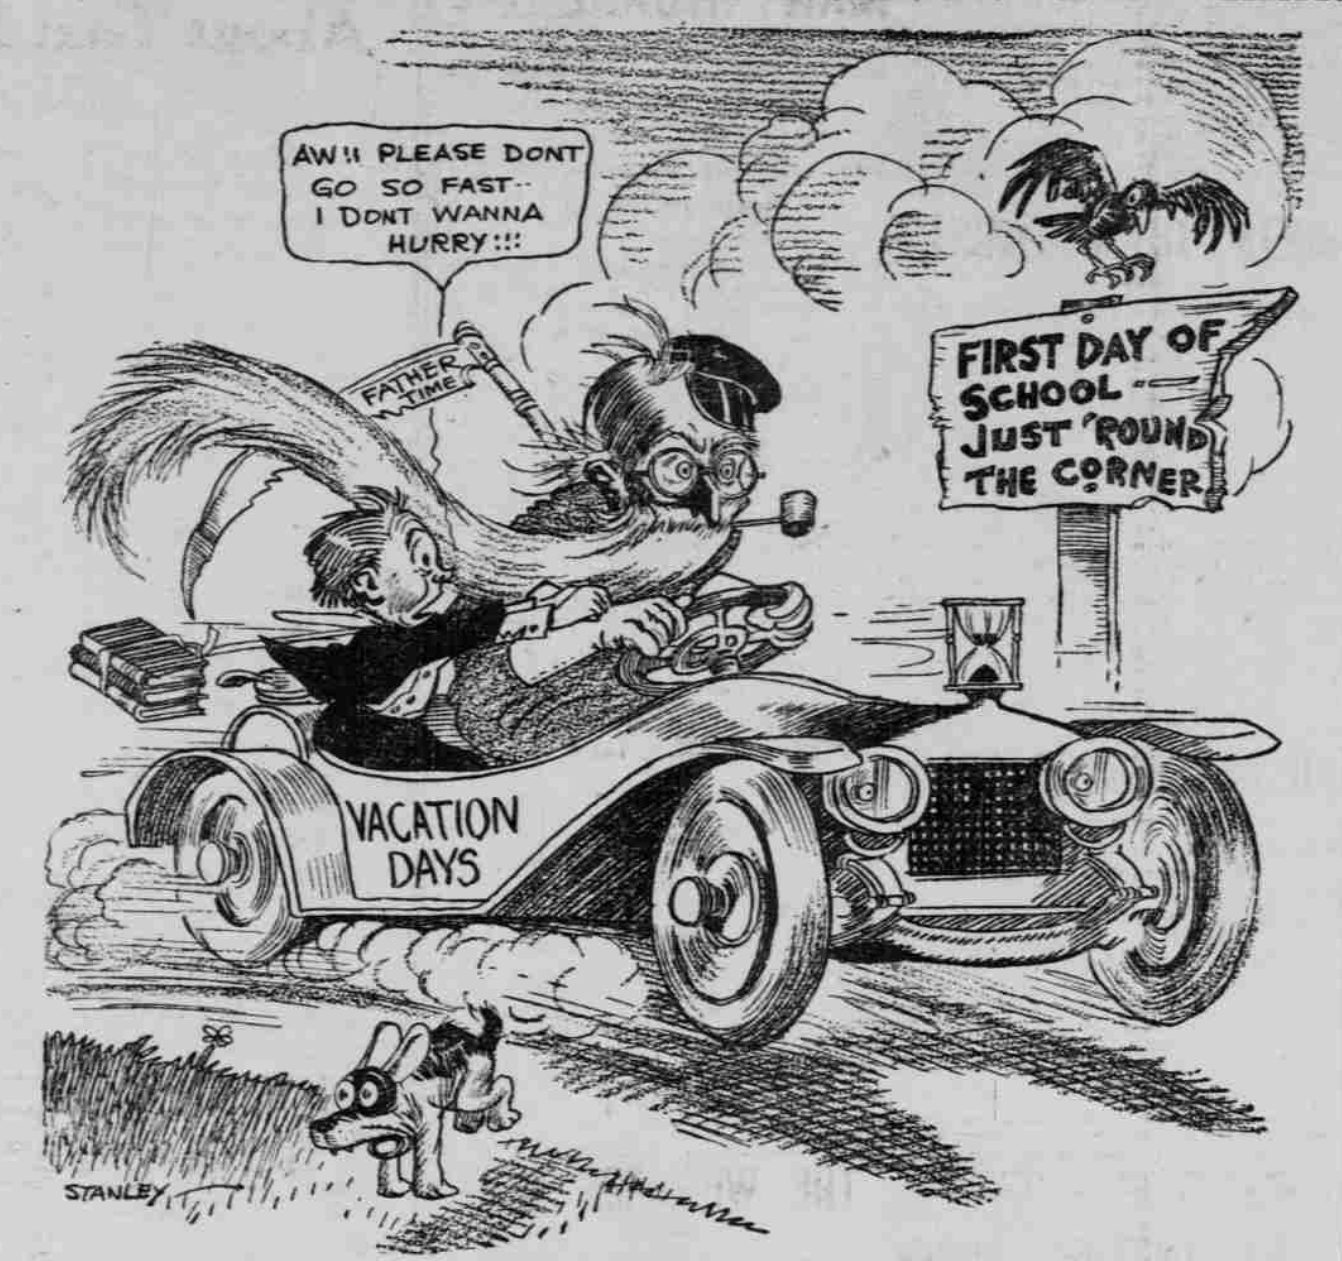

W. D. Armentrout, instructor in normal training and English has accepted a position at the Normal Training school, Pittsburgh. He will teach psychology. Ralph Gill, instructor in bookkeeping and typewriting, has handed in his resignation. H. T. Jett, supervisor of penmanship in the grades and instructor in the high school will be with the Seldan high school, St. Louis. Miss Edna Hopkins, instructor in English, resigned and will attend the Washburn law school. Miss Ruth Woodford, instructor in mathematics, is now Mrs. Dean Davis of Kansas City.

"Yes, sir, I saw stars, and believe me they were real." James Prouditt, guard at the city jail, made the assertion this morning a few minutes after he had been knocked head first into a pile of rocks by the breaking of a clothes line in the yard of the jail.

Prouditt sustained a cut in his scalp an inch and a half in length by the fall. The accident occurred when Prouditt was standing near the wire over which hung several heavy mattresses and the wire slipped from a pole.

However, the injury proved more painful than at first thought and Prouditt was unable to be at work this afternoon.

PUT HIS TRUST

IN MR. WILSON

Governor Capper Endorses the Policy of the President.

Back From the East With Strong Views on War.

CAN'T STAND WITH COLONEL

Opposed to Big Army and Bond Issues.

Sees No Danger of Any Invasion by Foreigners.

Governor Capper urges the support of President Wilson in any reasonable national policy, but he decidedly opposed to large standing armies, billion dollar appropriations, or displays of militarism further than adequate submarine and aerial equipment for defense. That was the opinion which the Kansas executive brought to Topeka today when he returned from the governors' conference in Boston.

During his stay in Boston, Governor Capper viewed the maneuvers of the Atlantic fleet from the deck of the battleship Wyoming. The Kansas governor, with other state executives, was in a party chaperoned by Secretary Daniels.

National preparedness was the one big topic discussed by the governors during their Boston visit. Coast state governors urged most strongly the need of a larger citizen soldiery and of more thorough and adequate coast defenses. Billion dollar appropriations, issuance of national bonds for defenses and the organization of large standing armies were freely discussed.

Governor Capper believes such military activities are unwarranted. "I do not believe Germany or any other nation is coming over here to blow us up," said Governor Capper. "Before they get through, they will have had all the war they want at home."

Modern submarine and aerial equipment is needed by the United States, Governor Capper stated. But the Kansas governor believes some of the coast state executives are unduly alarmed and excited.

"We should stand by President Wilson and support any reasonable program proposed by him for adequate defense," said Governor Capper. "But that is far enough. The public should not be unduly alarmed."

Then Governor Capper took a swipe at the alarmists. Although the governor was a staunch Roosevelt supporter in 1912, he does not believe in the extreme policies advocated by Roosevelt in his discussion of the big issue before state executives. "All sign affairs," further, the governor urged today that a safe and sane course be pursued and that no consideration be given to the land governors' conference was national preparedness," said Governor Capper today in a discussion of the big issue before state executives.
